New Business Enterprises—Good Year for the Man With the Hoe, and the Owner of Live Stock—Everybody Except the Editor Expects to Have Money to Burn.

Work was commenced on the new custom house at Douglas last week.

A Pima county miner having no paper at hand wrote a $100 check on a piece of shingle, and the check was honored at the Tucson National bank.

The Wilcox, Arizona, Range News says that the Commonwealth Mining & Milling company is going to build two 50,000-gallon oil tanks at Cochise.

A Phoenix man sent the following note to his family physician: "My wife's mother is at death's door. Please call and see if you cannot pull her through."

Mike Rice, the writer and miner, fell fifteen feet down the shaft of the Eureka mine at Cerbat, and ruptured his intestine in several places. No broken bones.

Col. Wilson and E. E. Ellingwood have formed a law partnership. Both are good lawyers and good men in every way. The firm will enjoy a large practice.

Cold weather and consequent frosts in portions of the Salt River valley has killed a good deal of fruit and early garden stuff has been either killed or retarded in its growth.

Imperial, the new town on the Imperial canal 35 miles south of Flowing wells, Yuma county, is soon to have a newspaper, the Imperial Press, with H. C. Reed, editor and manager.

Oil claims were filed in the Maricopa county recorder's office on day last week as follows: Thomas W. Parry, 20 acres; Clara S. Black, 60 acres, and James W. Parry, 20 acres. The land is located in the Tempe district.

A new law regarding carrying guns was enacted at the last session of the legislature which gives justices some option. They can now fine a man anything from $5 to $500, instead of $50 flat, as under the old law.—Range News.

Reports from Verde valley, Oak and Beaver creek say that there will be but little fruit raised there this season, frost having killed all the fruit buds. The weather in the valley has been unusually cold for the season during the past month.

A Tucson attorney had his clothes attached in Phoenix last week while he was taking a bath. Constable McDonald agreed to give the lawyer his clothes if he paid the bill. It is needless to say that the account was settled promptly.—Gazette.

With few exceptions the large and handsome structures in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Salt Lake are the results of profit in mining, and the bulk of the manufacturing and industrial enterprises in those three cities had their start from the same source.

The Arizona Daily Citizen suggests that the republicans of Arizona should drop Hon. Chas. H. Akers and Hon. I. T. Stoddard, who are seeking the office of territorial secretary, and urge the appointment of a more competent man, and mentions that man as being Major James H. McClintock.

The Southern Pacific railroad company has just had completed the pit and foundation on which will be placed an immense tank to be filled with oil to be used for fuel on engines. Tanks of the same capacity (one million gallons) will also be put in at El Paso, Tucson and Lordsburg.—Range News.

Frank Friesell and David Baxter returned Thursday from their trip down the Colorado river. They had a hard trip and are satisfied with it, but do not want to make another trip down that turbulent stream. They prospected along the way, but found no mineral of any value.—Coconino Sun.

The general land office has authorized the surveyors to proceed with the survey of the reserves in the territory of Arizona at once. The object of the survey will be largely to establish the metes and bounds of the reserves and compile official maps of them, but the work will also establish whether there is any large deposit of mineral to be found on the reserves.—Coconino Sun.

Chris Christensen says he never saw such crowds leave a train as were witnessed last night when the west bound passenger arrived. The most of them were strangers coming to Tucson to seek mines. Tucson is the great mining center of the southwest and the mines about here are just beginning to give up their wealth. Development always pays, and the man who "goes down" strikes the mineral.—Citizen.

President McKinley it seems will pass through here in the night, hence the executive will be slumbering and of course cannot be disturbed by Tucsonians. Those who desire to meet him will have to go to Phoenix, which point he will reach about 6 a. m. May 7 and will leave there at 5 p. m. for Los Angeles, later for San Francisco. This is the latest.—Star.

Governor Murphy is said to have received $150,000 for promoting the $3,000,000 sale of the Congress mine. Governor Murphy is a tireless, vigilant citizen, and the Era hopes this reported wind-fall is true. Any one who succeeds in interesting capital in our midst is a public benefactor—the Murphys are entitled to much consideration for their parts taken in this connection.—Copper Era.

Glendale may have a beet sugar factory, if inducements large enough are held out to eastern capitalists. Mayor Ganz has received inquiries asking what the people could do in the way of furnishing beets. This is an industry that would give employment to a large number of people. All that will have to be done is to give the factory owners a guarantee that enough beets can be raised to supply a good run of the concern.—Gazette.

Judge Joseph Kibbey arrived in Solomonville last week to attend the district court, he having been retained by the Arizona Copper company in the damage suit against the company brought by Robert Nevitt, who was injured by a passing train near Clifton depot some time last year. This case was tried at the last October term and the jury gave the plaintiff a judgment against the company for $15,000, but the court afterwards granted a motion for a new trial.—Bulletin.

On Monday last W. A. Pitts shipped his patent brick-making machine to Coronado, where he will establish a brick yard. Millions of brick are wanted for immediate use in Clifton and Morenci, and it would seem almost impossible to supply the demand. When Mr. Pitts' yard is started there will be three yards in active operation, and all working large forces of men. The brick manufacturers will evidently do their best to supply the demand.—Copper Era.

As a result of the gospel meetings under Maj. Cole, proprietor of the saloon opposite the entrance to the Phoenix park at the east end of the street car line has closed up the place, poured out the stock of liquors now on hand, upon the ground, and says the place shall never be opened up again as a saloon. A revival meeting will be held in the place tomorrow, Tuesday, afternoon at 4 o'clock, under the leadership of Maj. Cole, to which everybody is invited.—Enterprise.

The Kingman Miner says the production of precious stones in Arizona is sooner or later to build up an important industry. There are many of the finest gems in the world to be found in this country, such as the turquoise, sapphire, garnet, amethyst, ruby and many other gem stones that could be handled by local lapidaries. The turquoise produced in this country is of the finest color and texture and brings the highest prices in the markets of the country.

Hon. Charles M. Shannon of Clifton, arrived in Yuma on a business mission last Friday and made the Sentinel a brief call on Saturday morning. Mr. Shannon is an old time printer, having set type for the first issue of the ARIZONA SILVER BELT twenty-three years ago. Since that time Charley has become a wealthy mine owner, but still retains a warm corner in his heart for members of the craft of the "art preservative."—Sentinel.

A recent dispatch says, serious trouble continues along the line of the Nacari railway, where the graders have struck. On the Arizona end of the line several hundred Yaqui Indians have been put to work in place of the strikers and besides being heavily armed, are guarded by a strong force of deputies. At Fronteras, on Monday, an American gambler was killed in a fight with the strikers, two Mexicans were mortally wounded and several others seriously hurt. Four troops of Mexican soldiers have been asked for further protection. It is stated that an attempt by Americans to organize the graders was the cause of the strike and subsequent rioting.

Benjamin D. Fairbanks died in Tucson Monday night as the result of injuries received in a runaway which occurred but a few hours before. While driving along Congress street the horse became unmanageable. In turning a corner one of the wheels caught in a groove of the street railway track, stopping the buggy with such suddenness as to throw Mr. Fairbanks and his wife out of the buggy. The former struck on his head crushing the skull and horribly bruising the body. The deceased has resided in Tucson since 1869, and was 64 years old.

A big power plant is to be established on Fossil creek in central Arizona, for the development of electricity to be used by the mines in and around

Jerome, Prescott and Phoenix. The stream takes its rise in springs which burst in great volume from the side of the Mogollon plateau. The water from these springs is to be diverted and in a distance of twelve miles it is represented that a fall of 1,500 feet is obtainable. The electric power will have to be transmitted forty miles to Jerome, fifty miles to Phoenix, and seventy miles to Prescott, but in these days of advanced development these distances offer no bar to the complete success of the project, which will give great impetus to mining in that region.—Jerome News.

The steel for the broad gauge road has been laid to about two miles this side of Guthrie and will be finished into Clifton in about ten days. Work has not yet been commenced on the new steel bridge across the San Francisco river. The broad gauge trains will most likely be running into Clifton within four weeks. A large force of men are at work building a new road bed for the regular narrow gauge road up Chase creek to the Longfellow incline, where large ore bins are being built for the storage of ores from the various mines of that section. The foundation is also being laid above the plant at Clifton for the erection of bins for storing ore and coke.—Copper Era.

One of the best laws ever made by the Arizona legislature was passed as an amendment to that portion of the code known as the revenue bill. It provides that all persons, firms and corporations must pay their taxes before they can get a hearing in court. This means that on the amount assessed against any property and finally fixed by the board of equalization, the taxes must be paid into the treasury before the owners can be heard in court. After paying the tax the individual or company can sue the county for the recovery of that amount which they believe to be excess of what their taxes should be. This will put a stop to the practice of entering suits against the county in order to avoid payment of taxes for a year or two.—Safford Guardian.

William Downing broke down completely when the jury that tried him returned a verdict finding him guilty of attempting to rob the United States mail at Cochise. He had been indicted in connection with the hold-up, together with Stiles, Alvord and Matt Burts, and was released from jail on a bond of $5000. Downing believed that he would be acquitted since the jury acquitted him of complicity with the robbers in the hold-up of an express car. The verdict came as a great surprise and his nerve gave away. He began to tear clothes from his body when he was taken to jail and acted like a crazy man. This afternoon Downing was brought before Judge Davis for sentence, and when asked if he had any reason to give why sentence should not be passed, Downing began to approach the judge's bench, but was motioned back by the judge. Downing said: "Judge, I am innocent, and you'll know it some day." Judge Davis sentenced him to ten years in Yuma prison.—Citizen.

Vest's Tribute to the Dog.

Nashville American.

Many years ago, in a country town in Missouri, Senator Vest was retained for the plaintiff in a dog case. It was charged that the defendant had shot the dog in malice. Senator Vest said: "Gentlemen of the Jury: The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stones of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the winter winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him, to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies. And when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death."

Then Vest sat down. He had spoken in a low voice, without a gesture. He made no reference to the evidence or the merits of the case. When he finished judge and jury were wiping their eyes. The jury filed out, but soon entered with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $500. He had sued for $200. It is even said that some of the jurors wanted to hang the defendant.

You will waste time if you try to cure indigestion or dyspepsia by starving yourself. That only makes it worse when you do eat heartily. You always need plenty of good food properly digested. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the result of years of scientific research for something that would digest not only some elements of food but every kind. Holds up a Congressman.
"At the end of the last campaign," writes Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant congressman "from overwork, nervous tension, loss of sleep and constant speaking I had about utterly collapsed.
